THE PROSPEROUS FARMERS AND MERCHANTS' BANK.

It Increases its Capital Stock from $200,000 to $500,000—Interview with the President, I. W. Hellman Some Interesting Facts.

The stockholders of the Farmers and Merchants Bank, at their meeting yesterday, increased the capital stock of the institution from $200,000 to $500,000. The significance of this act caused The Times to think that there might be something of interest to the public in connection therewith, and accordingly a reporter called at the residence of I. W. Hellman, president of the bank, corner Main and Fourth streets, last evening. He was very kindly received by Mr. Hellman.

Upon stating his errand, Mr. Hellman indicated his willingness to impart any knowledge that might be of interest, at the same time remarking upon the enterprise same time remarking upon the enterprise shown by The Times in matters affecting public interests.

"Mr. Hellman, when was the bank of which you are president organized, and by whom?"

"I first established it as a private bank in 1808. In 1871 it was incorporated under the laws of California as a State bank, and it has remained such ever since. It is one of the oldest banks in California, and the oldest bank in Los Angeles."

"What are some of the differences between a State bank and a national bank, Mr. Hellman?"

"The most important difference between a State bank and one organized under the laws of this State is that, in the former case, the stockholders are liable to depositors for only twice their capital stock, while in a State bank the liability of the stockholders to the depositors is practically unlimited. In a State bank every stockholder is liable individually for all the debts of the bank in proportion to the amount of stock he owns. To make it plainer, if I own two-fifths of the stock in a State bank, with $500,000 capital, and that bank should fail, with liabilities to depositors of $2,000,000, I am individually liable for two-fifths of that $2,000,000, which is not the case with a national bank. This is the only State in the Union where such is the law, and a great many people do not know it to be the law."

"I should rather say not: and, according to this, your depositors ought to be pretty well secured against loss?"

"Well, yes.—We have increased our capital stock from $200,000 to $500,000, without touching the surplus accumulated of between $500,000 and $600,000. That gives us a working capital of over $1,000,000, and the wealth of the stockholders is somewhere in the neighborhood of $8,000,000 or $10,000,000, and as all are individually liable, as I remarked, and who are the security to depositors is pretty good."

"I suppose the business of your bank is prosperous?"

"We have over $8,500,000 or for the market. There is no reason why it should change. Our stockholders are about the same as th Hence, people who desire safety, rather than large gains, form a large part of our clientage. As to the second point, I may say, though I had hardly intended so to do, that the stockholders have received their investment back again twice over since the bank was organized in 1871. That may account for the desire to own the stock."

"Has there been any change of officers? And I suppose it needless to ask if the same policy will govern in future as the past?"

"There has been no change in the officers. I remain president, L. C. Goodwin vice-president, and John Milner cashier. Our policy will continue as before—a conservative one, and such as we trust will meet and merit the confidence and good-will of the public."

This ended the interview, and the Times man was pleasantly bowed out, reflecting that he had been conversing with a born financier about the affairs of an institution with the remarkable growth of which few in the State could make a comparison.

John Bryson Sells His First-and-Fort Corner.

John Bryson, Sr., yesterday sold his valu-able lot at the southeast corner of Fort and First streets to John I. The first 44 feet of First street running east from the corner of Fort—directly opposite the new Times Building—sold for $1000 a foot; the rest of the First-street frontage at $900 a foot. A BIG REDUCTION IN FREIGHT RATES WEST-BOUND.

The Figures of April 27th Reduced from 20 to 85 Per Cent.—Examples of the New Rate on Staple

THE TIMES has duly noted the successive phases of the freight tariffs under the Inter-state Commerce Bill—including the recent return to ante-rate-war rates, when the com return to ante-rate-war rates, when the com-mission suspended the operations of classes 4 for seventy-five days. It stated then that there was no guarantee that those rates would be maintained throughout the period of suspension. This semi-prophecy of change has already come true. Yesterday a 20 per cent. to 30 per cent. reduction of rates on west-bound freight went into effect.

cent. to 30 per cent. reduction of rates on west-bound freight went into effect.

Under the operation of the new law the Canadian Pacific demanded that it be given differential rates. That is to say, as it has to haul goods from Chiesgo to San Francisco, for instance, by a route so much more circuitous than those of its esteemed railroad contemporaries, and consequently required so much more time for the hauling, it demanded that it be allowed to haul at a lower rate than its shorter competitors. Then the Northern Pacific made the same demand. Then came the Denver and Rio Grande, which, being a narrow-gauge, wanted differential rates also. The Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé has steadily retused these demands, claiming that differential rates are an evasion of that clause of the new law which forbids pooling. Pooling is merely the arrangement whereby the railroads divide earning or traffic; and when differential rates are allowed, the shading of these rates down or up regulates the traffic that goes to the road to which these rates are granted. The Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé has fought the proposition, and seems to have won. A telegram was received by General Agent Williamson Dunn, of the California Southern Railroad, yesterday, from J. S. Leeds. It was dated Chicago, May 8th. It gives the following reduction of west-bound rates, with reference to the tariff which went into effect April 27th (the ante-rate-war rate), chief figures of which were published by THE Times. Mr. Leed's telegram says:

April 2.1th, will take the New RATE.

EXAMPLES OF THE NEW RATE.

The rate thus put into operation is not a "cut," but a tariff agreed upon by the railroad representatives convened in Chicago. They are public rates, and hold good or all roads doing a through freight business from Missouri River and eastern points to California terminals. The Southern Factio folks had no intention of the new deal till Mr. Dunn informed them of it, but they have joined right in with the procession. The Pacific coast tariff of April 27th gave practically the same rates as were in force before last year's savage rate-cutting—about twice the war rates in vogue three months ago. The tariff which went into effect yesterday gives a reduction of 20 to 30 per cent. on the tariff of April 27th. For instance, articles on which the April 27th rate was between $2.50 and $3.50 from Kansas City to Los Angeles or San Francisco, will now be carried for $2.10. Those on which the rate was over $1.75 and less than $2.50 will now be carried for 70 cents.

Canned goods from Missouri River points [this classification including Council Bluffs, St. Paul, Kansas City, Galveston and Houston] were $1.25 per hundredweight under the tariff of April 27th. They are now 77 cents.

Agricultural implements are reduced from $1.38 to 77 cents.

Also that a commission had been appointed by the court, consisting of A. R. Street, J. P. Moran, A. E. Dickson, I. N. Moore and George E. Long, to assess the damage caused by the opening of Los Angeles street.

The commission will hold their first meeting in the office of the County Clerk on Thursday, May 12th, at 12 o'clock.]

On request of City Attorney, use of Council chamber granted for meeting of Los Angeles-street property-owners.

The Mayor and President of the Council, as a special committee, presented the following report:

To the Honorable the Council of the City of Los Angeles—Gentlems: Your special committee (consisting of Mr. Breed and myself) interviewed Mr. Fillmore, general superintendent, and W. J. Curtis, general superintendent of track of the Southern Pacific Company, in regard to removal of track from Alameda street. The gentlemen treated us very courteously, and expressed a desire to do everything in their power to promote the interests of this city. After making known our business and impressing apon them the necessity of removal of track, they made a proposition to us of widening Alameda street, from First to the city limits, to a sufficient width to enable them to fence in their track.

Alameda street, from First to the city limits, to a sufficient width to enable them to fence in their track.

The railroad officials presented many difficulties in the way of the removal of the track, but are willing to take into consideration any proposition for a Union Depot on First street. It will require a larger sum of money to accomplish the removal than mentioned in Mr. McGeary's petition, yet your committee consider the matter of such importance as to warrant a larger expenditure. The railroad officials desire us to submit a written proposition to them next Saturday, and we ask your honorable body for further instructions as to what proposition we may make in writing.

Respectfully submitted.

OME OF THE SANTA MONICA RIOTERS WELL SALTED.

Six of the individuals who were mixed up in the disgraceful row on the Santa Monica train last Sunday were arrested yesterday morning by Constable Ed Smith, on complaints sworn to by Deputy Sheriff Seekatz. They gave their names as John Kelley, Brooks Powell, David Ferner, David Anderson, Maud Robinson and Gracie Doe (Diel). They appeared before Justice Austin at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon and pleaded guilty. To get at the true inwardness of the case the Court decided to hear evidence pro and con.

Deputy Sheriff P. M. Darcy, who is in the employ of the railroad company, was the first witness. He said the women used profane language all the way from Santa Monica to this city. The men were singing and having a good time. There were a number of ladies and children on the train, who could hear what was going on.

Brooks Powell pleaded not guilty, and said he wanted to make a statement, and did so, as follows: Mr. Kelley and I were singing, but the songs were not obscene. I did not use obscene language.

The Court to Darcy: Did you hear this man singing obscene songs?

Darcy: I heard him singing.

Powell: I think my reputation will bear me out. I travel for Redington & Co., and I am well known here.

Kelley: Mr. Powell and I were singing the

I am well known here.
Kelley: Mr. Powell and I were singing the same songs.

Deputy Sheriff Seekatz: I was standing right over them for five or six minutes.

Deputy Sheriff Del Valle: These two ladles were singing the chippie song. It was obscene. I heard the women swearing, but I did not hear Kelley and Powell swearing. The girls were pretty drunk, and Mr. Kelly was a little full.

Officer Luther was worn.

Powell: Did you hear me singing obscene songs?

Luther: I heard singing. I was only in the car where you folks were singing. Four of you were singing "By the Moonlight," but I did not hear you singing obscene songs.

David Ferner and David Anderson were arraigned, pleaded not guilty and declared that they were ready for trial.

Deputy Sheriff Seekatz told how they had acted: Turner was swearing and cursing the women all the way up. Anderson was very drunk. They were all together.

Deputy Sheriff Darcy: The whole crowd was having a good time, making a noise, singing, etc. I heard Anderson and Ferner them from one earing. You could hear them from one eard of the ear to the other.

There were women and children on the car.

Ferner: Were there not so many on the

There were women and children on the car.

Ferner: Were there not so many on the car that I could not get out?

Seekatz: I think you could have gone into another car. I know you took your friend out and let him vonit.

Officer Del Valle: I saw Anderson and Ferner on seats with the girls. They were very noisy. Anderson was asleep nearly all the way up.

P. Froelich: I was sitting behind the gang. Ferner was making a great deal of noise. His partner was too drunk to make any noise. The girl was singing a pretty hard song, and the boys were joining in the chorus.

Ferner: Did you hear me using hard language?

Froelich: Yes.

In the chorus.

Ferner: Did you hear me using hard language?
Froelich: Yes.
Ferner: What did I say?
Froelich: You said. [Repeating some of his language.]
Several persons were sworn for the defense, but they could not hear a word that was spoken on the train, and never saw a better-behaved crowd in their lives. The court did not take much stock in this last testimony, and found the whole party guilty, and asked them if they were ready to receive their sentence. They seemed to think the whole thing a huge joke, and laughingly informed his Honor that they were ready to be sentenced. The Court spent a few minutes writing, when he looked up and read his decision, as follows: "Brooks Powell, the judgment of this court is that you pay a fine of $20 or be confined in the County Jail for a period of twenty days. Ferner will take thirty days or pay a fine of $30. Anderson will pay $15 or fitteen days in the County Jail; Kelley, $30 or thirty days. The two women, Maud Robinson and Gracie Diel, will each be imprisoned in the County Jail for a period of forty days. The menexcept young Ferner—put up their fines and were allowed to go. The women and Ferner were sent to the County Jail. The girl, Gracie Diel, was a graduate of St. Vincent's College, San Francisco, and comes from a good family. She is only about 18 years old, and might be saved from her evil ways if Mrs. Watson should get hold of her.

Brooks Powell, who is a well-known and well-liked young business man here, states that Kelley, whom he knew by sight, gave him the only vacant seat in the car, and he act down not knowing any of the rest of

A STRIKING and noteworthy exhibit of progress made in the banking business in Los Angeles is that which appears on another page, the facts having been gleaned by a representative of THE TIMES from Mr. I. W. Hellman, the conspicuously well-equipped head of the Farmers and Merchants' Banka man who stands as a natural financier, and one of the most successful bankers in the country.

The subject of street-paving is now fairly before the City Council, and it becomes the duty of the members of the committee appointed for the purpose to examine and act upon the sev eral kinds of materials submitted for to all the materials, plans and bids submitted, and then decide in favor of that the Confederate General Rosser an exwhich seems best for the city, looking not at its present needs alone, but far into the future, for we are building for all time. We cannot afford to delay this vital matter longer. Los Angeles s behind in this regard, and action is needed—early and decisive action. The copile are calling for action.

Necessities That Must Be Regarded.

Los Angeles is now in the midst of an imperial growth of prosperity. The rapidity with which her waste places are being subdivided and occupied is astonishing even to those who for the past few years have watched her sure advance and development. The ad-vantages of this section it is scarcely possible to over-rate. As far as climate and soil are concerned, we have the best that Nature has to offer. As far as resources go, we are as rich in them as any section of the State, as any portion of the world. There is work enough here for all who come. The complete development of all our resources will require a large multiplica-tion of the brawn and muscle that we have in our midst.

is now ready for doing, for active and legitimate enterprise in almost every direction. The world is no longer blind to our possibilities. It has as much faith in us as we have in ourselves. It is anxious to share with us the possible greatness of our future. Capital is eager to distribute itself in our midst. It is ready to seize upon every opportunity for investment It comes to us not only from abroad but from the northern and other sections of the State, and offers, with our coöperation, to build up large industries and open new channels for trade and commercial operations. It sees our possibilities as a great distributing point for the surrounding States and Territories; it is anxious to strike hands with us, and to furnish, as far as possible, what is needed for our success Nothing but unwise conduct on our part can now hinder or change the steady progress of our advancement.

The day for immense unoccupied ranches within our borders has gone by. The cowboy and the sheepherder must be relegated to the past. The lonely ranch-house, standing solitary and surrounded by virgin soil, belongs to bygone years. The rich productiveness of our soil is being daily demonstrated. Its ability to sustain a dense population is also more generally comprehended, and so, from the compara tively sterile and unproductive lands of the East the agriculturist and the horticulturist are not slow to turn, feeling confident of bettering their condition

Of course, all of this involves on our part a making ready for their reception. We must prepare the land for their coming. We must divide and subdivide to make room for the home builder and for the small landholder.

But this matter of subdivision, as we have said before, must not be overdone. We do not want all town and no country. We must not put into town lots all of our lands, so that there shall be none left for our orchards and grainfields. If we have cities they must be fed, and we must not send abroad for all of our supplies.

A country is prosperous only as it is self-sustaining. It is rich only as it has unfailing resources, upon which it may rely. Its strength is not less in a variety of manufacturing interests and agricultural wealth than rare climatic advantages and fruitful soil. In our fever of town-building we must not overlook what underlies all progress. the development of our natural re sources, such as shall keep pace with the growth of our population, and the multiplication of industrial enterprises such as shall afford employment and the means of a generous livelihood to the working classes.

No community is safe that has to sus-SAN JOSE is erecting, as if upon a tain a large unemployed population. joicing over the vote for the issue of kept open; industrial enterprises must $500,000 in bonds for public improve- be nurtured and placed on a footing ment. San José is a nice town, and with the demand for employment. No class of labor can be safely ignored or unprovided for if we would push steadily forward in the path of successful evelopment and prosperity. It will never do for us to lose sight of the fact that the country is the necessary adjunct to the city; that the farmer is as important a factor in community as the capitalist and merchant. Agriculture, horticulture, manufactures, and every department of business and trade must be surely fostered and built up, or our new towns will languish, and our laboring classes become tumultuous and dangerous. From the solidarity of the industries comes the true prosperity of city and country.

IT is said by the Arizona Citizen that on the Santa Cruz bottom, contiguous to Tucson, there are but 7000 acres of land under cultivation, there being water sufficient only to irrigate that This is a surprising statement area. especially in view of the statement, which is asserted as a fact, that by the expenditure of the small sum of about $2000, fully 12,000 additional acres of rich arable land can be brought under cultivation and made to yield abundantly. Samuel Hughes is the man who in conjunction with others, proposes to test the matter and demonstrate the truth or falsity of the claim made. The sun-kissed land needs more men of the same sort.

GEN. SHERIDAN recently proposed their inspection. Let them give a to take a horseback ride over the thorough and impartial examination track of his Virginia campaigns of the Civil War, and this drew out from cited protest, in which he called Sheri don a vandal. Rosser ought to show better sense. And, besides, he is not the man to talk about outlawry or inhumanity, for, during the war, there was a very grave charge resting against him—the charge that his command shot to death, in a pass of the Blue Undelivered Telegrams.

Undelivered Telegrams.

There are messages uncalled for at the Western Union telegraph office, 17 North Main street, for the following persot s: Rev. N. L. Rigby, John J. Hill.

Ridge, near Harrisonbur ber of Union prisoners of war. As to Gen. Sheridan, the proposition that he shall not ride where he may—over the track of his magnificent campaign of '64 in the Valley of Virginia, or any-where else within the limits of the land he fought for—such a proposition is too absurd. Rosser becomes almost as hysterical and preposterous at mention of Sheridan's name as does old Jubilee Early, whom gallant little Phil sent whirling up the valley."

It is said by some up-country papers that, when Chief Consul Welch was making his run through this county on a bicycle, bands of wild horses surrounded him and impeded his progress Of course everybody knows that the bands of wild horses are very numer This section of Southern California is done with waiting—it the San Pasqual ranch (sometimes called Pasadena), and other strictly grazing sections of this county. But why the wild horses of Los Angeles should surround Chief Consul Welch, that is a poser. They are so unused to human visitors, not to say bicycles. Oh, ye drawers of the long bow!

THE Oakland Enquirer takes some comfort to itself and its section be cause the consolidated Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé railways hereabout are called the California Central. "If it had been expected that the system would not radiate beyond the three southern counties the name Central would not have been applied to it," says the Enquirer. This is plausible reasoning, but not very solid to hang the hopes of the Northern Citrus Belt The roads are denominated upon. California Central because they are in the center of the enterprise and thrift and push of the State. Sabe?

A good many curious stories come from Arizona about the tricks of the temblor in that parlous paradise. The Tombstone Epitaph inscribes upon its front the statement that when the earthquake shock reach Solomonville, Judge Barnes was holding court. He hurriedly adjourned, and the bailiff, in charge of a jury, fled from his post of duty, leaving them locked up. It was only the work of a moment for that august body to find a speedy exit through a small window, and all hands met on the street. It is not known whether or not the jurymen were fined for contempt of court.

"The whole country is on the gallop. The advent of the boom was delayed in the southwestern portion of the county, but now that the wave of progress has struck that section, there is no time being lost. Southern California is astonishing the benighted boomers of the Northern Orange Belt, First, Jos Angeles had the call, next San Dlego, then San Bernardino, and now it is the whole southern section of the State. Now, we know the country around South Riverside well. It is, with water put on it, one of the very finest sections in this southern country. The climate is as good as the best; the land is unexcelled. The Chino ranch is a principality in itself. Were Mr. Gird to subdivide and sell it, he could make room on his property for several thousand people. Who would live in plenty on the indigenous products. That subdivision will be the ultimate fate of this princely ranch is of course certain in the inevitable course of economic events. What a destiny is reserved for San Bernardino county! And with a Very Fair Show to Recover.

Yesterday morning the Fathers thought that little Eddie Curran, who was so terribly mangled by a street car Saturday, was dying. The physicians in attendance on the little fellow were hastily called. Last evening at 8:30 o'clock they left, it is said, and were rather confident that he will recover. He was resting much easier than at any time since the accident, and the doctors think the critical stage has passed. Dr. P. T. Huckins, who has charge of the case, stated last night that the sensational matter in an evening paper is pure fiction; that the boy is doing very well and will probably recover.

The Penny and the Nickel.

[Pasadena Star.]

Some unknown patriot just arrived from the East writes a letter to induce us to open our editorial batteries against bankers, merhants, etc., who make no change less than inickel. His is "a plea for the pennies." We decline with thanks. There are very ewe pennies on this coast, and we hope there never will be a time when there will be more. Business moves too rapidly and there never will be a time when there will be more. Business moves too rapidly and in too great volume here to allow any time for monkeying with pennies. Nothing is lost by it, and a great deal of trouble is avoided. If a man owes you 53 cents, he gives you 55 cents, but if 52 cents is the amount of his indebtedness, he will settle the account by handling you "four bits." This is the business custom, and we like it. We trust our new arrival will speedlip fall into our western ways, be satisfied and happy as he grows up with the country and its superior customs. its superior customs. We publish the eard below:

"We live in an age of progression, and we don't see why Pasadena should not keep abreast (ahead, if possible) of the times. We are a great people, and the world is getting wakened up to the fact, and in deference takes off her hat to us when we speak. If such be so, why is it that our merchants still adhere to the system of not making change less than 5 cents, or on a 5-cent basis. We know no good reason, unless that of custom, now that we have a circulation of 1 and 2 cent pieces. We think that 2 or 3 cents in making change is as good this side of the counter as the other, and a deal sight better, as Paddy would say, as it properly belongs thereto. Let this side strike, and we will very soon have a change, and the arithmetic of our stores become the arithmetic of our schools, where we have been taught that two and two always make four—not five."

Prohibition That Did Not Prohibit

Prohibition That Did Not Prohibit. [Exchange.]

Michigan, in 1855, placed on her statute books one of the most thorough and stringent prohibition laws ever enacted. Under its provisions all contracts into which liquor entered were invalidated. All payments for it were made without consideration, and recoverable on that ground. Its manufacture and sale were prohibited absolutely. To sell it was to forfeit the lease of the place where the sale occurred. Owners of property leased as saloons were made jointly liable with the saloon-keepers for actual and exemplary damages, and the penalties for its violation were most severe. And yet, when this model prohibition statute was repealed, in 1875, there were over 6000 saloons in the State.

Mining Company, giving some startling news of the earthquake in the interior of Mexico. Following is a copy of the letter:

"At 3:20 p.m., May 3d, a sharp earthquake shock was felt here, which has been followed at intervals by other shocks yesterday and last night. Sheldon, Bonnie, Groesbeck and myself were down in one of the Leon mines, five miles from the general mining headquarters, when the first shock came. We thought the mine was caving in on us, and left it in a hurry. On getting out, we concluded that the powder-house here had exploded (which is at some distance), and rushed back, to find the people in a state of great excitement. Hardly had this excitement subsided when two men were shot dead. A young miner had shot his companion and committed suicide. This will delay me, as I am on the jury. Meanwhile, startling rumors are arriving from Corralitos. McGrew writes that an active volcano is in action fifty miles southwest of Casas Grandes. This must be near the reported volcano. The smoke is dense. A man sent out to Corralitos last night, reports seeing a large fire to the southwest of Casas Grandes. Walkis sends word from Corralitos that a spring broke out half-way from Corralitos to the Rawers road. This spring, up to last accounts, was throwing a stream as large as a man's body to the height of twenty-five and thirty feet. It is the spring formerly known as Ojo de Don Pedro. It is reported that the volcano is near the ranch of Senator Hearst."

We have no representatives in the Imperial Parliament, and as a part of the American Union we would be beyond the danger of attack whenever England becomes involved, and besides our rights as a colony we would be a part of a great nation, with a voice in its affairs. There is an organization in this country, all over Canada, which is for the purpose of promoting the growth of the movement for amexation. We intend to agitate the question till we succeed. The French-speaking class of our people are for annexation. The only people who oppose us are the would-be aristocracy and those who call themselves the court circle. #### A NAUGHTY DANCER.

True Inwardness of the Scandal at the Mexican Capital-Letter from a Participant in the Row.

By Telegraph to The Times, EL PASO, May 9.—[By the Associated Press.] The following letter was received today:

MEXICAN CENTRAL RAILROAD, May 5. To the Agent of the Associated Press.— My DEAR SIR: In the El Paso Times of the My Dear Sir: In the El Paso Times of the 5th, which a traveling friend gave me after meeting the south-bound train of the Mexican Central Railroad, I find a telegram referring to the ball that was held at the Spanish Casino in the City of Mexico on the night of the 30th of last April. Believing that you have been misinformed, I take the liberty of begging from you a rectification, which I hope you will publish as you did the telegram above mentioned. Here are the facts—nothing else. They notified me as one of the floor-managers that Mr. Baron was dancing with Miss Bazaine in rather too immodest a manner. At once I moved to see, but I got there when just the last notes of the waltz were dying away, losing thus the chance to judge for myself. The people present informed me what I had been told already. I thought for the moment to make no remark, but later, when in the dining-room, in the presence of the daughters of an American general, the secretary of the club saw fit to give Mr. Baron a hint of what people were saying about him. This seemed to show a bad tendency. When the writer interfered with calming words for the sake of the young ladies present and tried his best to establish peace, but Mr. Baron did not cease to believe himself offended, and went to hunt up the Spanish Minister. For the sake of order I thought best to follow him. In coming across the Spanish Minister Mr. Baron began rather warmly to tell how the Chief Secretary had offended the young ladies and himself, and the Minister, instead of trying to quiet things down and avert an unpleasant scene, took the part of Mr. Baron. I thought it then my duty, for the sake of prene, to take the belligerents outdoors, but the Minister firmly declined to leave. At this time the president of the cub came and succeeded in taking away Mr. Baron, leaving the Spanish Minister lone with the witnesses of his behavior. What the Spanish colony thinks of the Minister is not known. A commission to investigate the trouble has reported that there was no ground for Mr. 5th, which a traveling friend gave me after meeting the south-bound train of the

In the Territory of Arizona-He Tells Something About the Growth and Present Condition of Arizona

Charles M. Strauss, Superintendent of Public Instruction of the Territory of Ari-zona, is visiting this city, and is a guest at the St. Elmo. Mr. Strauss has lived in Arizona a number of years, and was Mayor Arizona a number of years, and was Mayor of Tucson during its stormy days. He is a small, military-looking gentleman, but in his conversation he is as mild as a minister, and no one would believe for a moment that he is the little-big man who made the toughs and cowboys who thought they owned Tucson take to the mountains never to return. When Mr. Strauss was elected Mayor a man's life was not safe on the streets, but he the mountains never to return. When Mr. Strauss was elected Mayor a man's life was not safe on the streets, but he soon put a stop to all ruffianism, and in his own language "Tucson is as quiet as any city in the Union. People never think of such a thing as going armed, but from 1880 to 1882 when a man left home in the morning he kissed his family good-bye, and was not sure whether he would be taken home on a shutter or not."

Mr. Strauss has worked very hard to bring the public schools of the Territory up to a civilized standard, and he is confident that his work has borne good fruit. They are a little short of funds at present, for the reason that taxation is very low, but the Governor, who is a member of the Board of Education, is very anxious to do all in his power to assist schools, and has done a great deal all ready. The Territory is growing very fast, both in population and wealth, and Mr. Strauss's confident that the country will eventually be one or the best in the Union. He thinks it is one of the finest fruit countries in the world, and to illustrate his assertion he called the writer's attention to the Salt River country, which was a barren desert only a few years ago. A handful of Mormons settled in the valley, and today fruits of all kinds are being grown. The Mormons suited in the valley, and today fruits of all kinds are being grown. "There has been a great deal of talk about the big earthquake which occurred last week," said Mr. Strauss, "butthe people up here do not seem to understand the good that has befallen Tucson on account of this same earthquake. Large, fine springs have been born at various points near our city, and places where it seemed impossible to get water, are now well watered. Volcano! bosh! I saw what was supposed to be smoke from the volcano, and it was nothing but dust. One of the large cones in the Catalina Mountains toppled over, and a cloud of dust hung over the mountain several days. No, there is not an active volcana in Sonora. There are fires in the Sierra Madra mountains, and the earthquake has frightened people so that they think it is an earthquake."

BYRAM & DUTTON, Glendale, Cal.

Look where you will in the vicinity of the city of Los Angeles, in search either of lots or acce property, for charming homes, and the best judgments will be convinced at a glance as to the difficulty of Inding a location for a town so beautiful, such pure and bracing air, and smooth, rich lands as characterizes Hyde Park. This splendid townsite is located on the line of the California Central, of the A., T. & S. F. system, which is to connect Los Angeles with the new harbor at La Ballona, and is distant 7½, miles from the center of the city; a midway town between the city and the harbor. Trains are to be running through the tract by July next, when great business activity all along the line will be the order of the day. Liberal-sized lots, 60x189 feet, fronting on sixty-foot avenues, are offered and being taken rapidly at $100 cent; $40 cash, balance $10 per month, without interest. Such terms give the present purchasers a good opportunity to make money in the rising values that must follow the effects of the harbor and railroad developments. Particularly desirable are the 5 and 10 acre vills lots surrounding the town. Conveyances leave the office at 1:30 p.m., to show parties the beautiful property.

Naw York, May 9.—Money on call, easy, at 437 per cent., closing at 4 offered. The stockimarket today was dull and featureless from a variety of causes, including an inexplicable bank statement. The anxiety call remains in regard to the effects of the interstate Law, and the election of the Stock Exchange officers, which occurred today, contributed to this effect. Fluctuations were unsually astrow for a dull day. London was a moderate buyer early in the day. The sensation of the day was furnished by a drop of something over 8 per cent. in Et. Worth and Tenver, only a small portion of which was receivered toward the close by a settlement with aborts. Wheeling and Lake Erie was also remarkably weak. A reduction in sterling exchange was an element: The opening was steady, first prices being unchanged or only ninginificant fractions different from Saturday's figures. The general market was about steady until noon, after which it became firm, although flattened somewhat by a drop in Ft. Worth, which occurred at that time. There was a steady, though slight, appreciation in values toward the close, and the market closed dull but firm. A majority of stocks are small fractions, higher this evening, but Ft. Worth and Denver is down by, Wheeling and Lake Eric 4, and Rock Island 5 per cent.

CLAREMONT

THE BEAUTIFUL.

There is enough of true merit in the superb climate of Southern California nough to praise in the magnificen cenery and the remarkable fertility of to resort to foolish expressions or misstatements of any character. CLARE-MONT, the beautiful new town on the Santa Fe route, midway between San Bernardino and Los Angeles, poss all the requirements to make it the leading suburb of Los Angeles - the nountain home, the place of rest, the sanitarium. Why? This can be answered in person by you in a day or two, for the trains will soon be running past its sunny hills. Look care fully at all the new towns, and then examine the peculiar attractions of Claremont. Located at the foot of the picturesque San Antonio canyon, it monopolizes the only good view of that grandest of our mountain peaks, "Old Baldy." The pure water, the inviting pools teeming with brook-trout, car only be reached easily from Claremont. Below us, some 400 feet, is Po mona, nestled in a valley as lovely as that of Cashmere, and as fruitful as that of Egypt.

The panorama from Claremont is not equaled in California. Our water supply is the very best. We are the very center of the great artesian belt The Claremont Water Company pipe us water under 100-foot pressure.

Our soil is the most productive in California. Mortal eye never looked apon roses, strawberries, apricots peaches, plums, oranges or lemons more perfect than those of Claremont We are authorized to state that commutation tickets will be sold to Clare mont residents at very low rates at once upon the opening of the railroad This week, "The Manchester," an exquisite hotel, will be begun. The most picturesque cottage on the line is now building; a bank building contracted for. The railroad company will make their depot grounds a park. The depowill be an artistic building, calculated to please the class of residents that are sure to make Claremont their home The Pacific Land Improvement Com pany take pride in Claremont as their first town. THE PRESENT STATUS OF THE HESPERIA COLONY.

What Judge R. M. Widney Thinks of Some Editors-Some Straigh Talk on the Subject of Land and

The Courier, of San Bernardino, in last Sunday's issue, contained an article touch-ing the Hesperia Colony, located if that county, and speaking in a manner that tends county, and speaking in a manner that tends to injure its prospects.

Knowing that several prominent men of Los Angeles were interested in this colony, a Times reporter went in search of Judge
R. M. Widney and found that gentleman at his home on Olive street. Judge Widney was shown the article in question and asked if he had anything to say about it or about the affairs of the company. After carefully reading the article he spoke as follows, verbatim:

"Many of the San Bernardino people and some of their editors are not only dogs in the manger, but hogs in the manger. When Riverside and Ontario were first started they tried to kill them off by just about the same kind of talk as the Courier gets off at Hasparia.

Riverside and Ontario were first started they tried to kill them off by just about the same kind of talk as the Courier gets off at Hesperia.

"Such men as the editor of the Courier were too stupid and too lazy ever to go over and see what the water supply or the lands of Hesperia were. The Hesperia Land and Water Company, before purchasing their lands and water rights, had the water title of every location on the Mojave River, from its source to its sink, examined.

"The Hesperia Land and Water Company is riparian owner for many miles on the length of that short river, and, as a riparian owner under the decisions of the Supreme Court of this State, have a perfect title to more than enough water to irrigate all the lands they offer for sale.

"And as prior locators of a water right under the laws of the State, they have the first and only legal appropriation that has ever been filed on the waters of the river.

"As a second proposition, the waters used by the Hesperia Land and Water Company sink on the lands of the company, and do not flow down in the summer-time to within fifteen miles of the nearest man below them on the river; and the use of the Hesperia Land and Water Company of the waters will in no wise affect the parties below in their use of water.

"These people that I have mentioned have always been attempting to interfere with the title or water of projects outside of San Bernardino, and for a while carried it so far as to elect an Assessor who would assess lands outside at a much higher rate than

"This editor, instead of trying to assist the "This editor, instead of trying to assist the development of his county, seems to be doing his best to drive enterprising men out into the adjoining counties of Los Angeles and San Diego; and, it some person didn't pay him for writing this fool article, he must be a fool if he thinks that the Hesperia Land and Water Company will pay 5 cents to buy him off."

"Who are the gentlemen interested in this project?"

"Who are the gentlemen interested in this project?"

"Nine-tenths of the stock is owned by the following men: E. F. Spence, ex-Mayor and president First National Bank; Maj. George H. Bonebrake and F. C. Howes president and cashier Los Angeles National Bank; H. L. Macnell, former cashier Los Angeles County Bank; Perry-Mott Lumber Company; Ganahl & Schallert Lumber Company; John Widney, of Santa Clara; Dr. Wells, of Los Angeles, and myself.
"I am not surprised at this article. I have been rather expecting something of the kind, and more stupidity and ignorance than appears in this article is seldom set with the same amount of type.

"You may say further that the Mojave River at present runs 200 to 300 feet wide, and about eighteen inches deep, near our lands. The lowest known flow in summer, where we take out water, is 5000 inches. The quantity taken by the Hesperia Land and Water Company, and which is more than we can use, is 2000 inches; and that does not represent the amount we are entitled to, either as riparian owners or as prior appropriators. Our title to our water is perfect under any construction of the law."

Ward Goes Out and Captures His Own Robbers.

A bold robbery took place in this city a few days ago, but no clue to the theft could be obtained until yesterday. The police scoured the city, and came to the conclusion that P. Ward, who had notified them that a bold thief had entered his house and walke off with his trusty shotgun, was a little cracked in his upper story. Ward did not give up, however, and started out to do a little cowboy detective work on his own hook. He armed himself with a double-barreled shotgun, loaded with buckshot, and started out to look up the thief. He had gone but a short distance when he came across a countryman, who had visited him a few days before. The man looked guilty. across a countryman, who had visited him a few days before. The man looked guilty, and Ward went for him. The man wilted, and, after a little talk, he confessed that he had in his possession a shotgun which answered the description of Ward's. Ward was not satisfied with recovering his shotgun, so he ordered the man to get in the buggy and take a ride. Ward had two loaded shotguns and a highwayman in his possession, and when he drove into town yesterday morning he felt bigger than a general who had captured an army. He drove to the police station and handed his prisoner over to Capt. Tyler. The man gave his name as John Powell, and was charged with grand larceny. Ward is positive that Powell, who visited him a few days ago, stole the gun. At any rate, he missed it a few hours after Powell left the house. FIRE COMMISSIONERS.

A BIG IDEA.

Concentrating Wine-muist for Export to Europe.
Dr. Springmild won Weissenfeld, a German chemist of world-wide repute, is in this city on a mission fraught with great importance to Southern California. He is accompanied by Paul Oeker. They come in the interest of a London syndicate, which desires to found here an establishment for the concentration of wine-must. The process is now in Italy and other European countries, and is remarkably successful and profitable. The must is concentrated to from 37, to 40 per cent. of its original bulk, and can then be transported to any distance without danger of fermentation. Two difficulties in the way of introducing Southern California wines into Europe are high freights and high duties. The concentrated must can be exported free of duty, and freights will be comparatively low. When the must arrives in England, France, or wherever its destination may be, it can be manufactured cheaply into wine. Dr. Springmith is here in consultation, which is president of and owns a controlling interest in the San fabriel Wine Company, whose winery, six miles from this city, is the largest in the world. To the queries of a representative of the Times, yesterday, Mr. Shorb said: "There is no doubt that California's most important industries are those connected with her vines, which flourish from Yuma to Shasta. This process of concentrating the must is found a valuable abroad, and Dr. Springmithl wishes to introduce it here. We are investigating the matter thoroughly; and if it proves satisfactory, we will go into to no a large scale at our establishment. It is of the uncest importance to us to get our wines into Europe, and to do so at once. If the matter is all right, we will go head at once, and be ready for business by fall. The capital required to make the undertaking as success will be $100,000 or more. As yet we have done nothing, and the matter is still entirely conditional upon our being satisfied that we can carry out

Prosperous Fix of the Maclay Theo

logical College.
Readers of THE TIMES will re that last year ex-State Senator Charles Maclay, of San Fernando, gave the Uni-versity of Southern California $150,000 to found the Maclay Theological College at San Fernando. In making this munificent gift he said to the trustees: "You can have this either in cash, in installments, or in San this either in cash, in installments, or in San-Fernando lands at $150 an acre." The trustees, like the level-headed men they are, showed their faith in the future of Southern California, and chose the land. Senator Maclay accordingly gave them $150,000 in scrip of the San Fernando Land and Water Company. On Saturday they turned this scrip over and received the land—1000 acres. The wisdom of their choice has already been demonstrated. There is a considerable boom in the beautiful San Fernando Valley; and the lands which the trustees took at $150 per acre they are already selling at $200 and $250 per acre. They have already sold $30,000 worth at these figures. Senator Maclay's gift, therefore, will bring in to the University from $200,000 to $250,000.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED.

DR. WILLIAMS.

With his new system of Medicated Inhalations combined with proper constitutional remedie for the liver, stomach, blood, etc.

Probably no system of practice ever adopted has been so universally successful as that in troduced by Dr. Williams for the cure of Catarrh, Throat Diseases, Bronchitis, Asthms

CATARRH.

CATARRH.

Catarrh is often regarded by the patient as a cold in the head, and he often expresses his astonishment at his remarkable tendency to contract a fresh cold; indeed, he declares that he is searcely free from one cold before he takes another, and oet he is always exceedingly careful; it is also a matter of surprise to him that the cold always seems to settle in the head and throat.

At times many of the symptoms of Catarrh may seem to abate, and the patient is led to hope that the disease is about to wear off; but snother class of symptoms soon appears, and he learns to his horror that instead of recovery frem the disease, it is somewhat changed in its character and has extended to the throat. A sense of weariness is sometimes felt in reading, speaking er singing, hoarseness at times cocurs, a sensation of dryness is felt in the throat, or it appears that some foreign substance, as, for instance, a hair, obstructed the throat; there becomes a sense of languor and fatigue, the breath lessens upon a little exertion, a short, hacking cough, a peculiar sound in clearing the throat, a feeling as though there was not room enough in the chest to breathe; these and other symptoms occur after the disease has made considerable progress. Then it is a time when consumption is about to begin its dreadful work. Up to this time the progress of the disease may have been slew, and the patient may, in expressing his confident hope that it will "wear off," declare that he has had the catarrh for years, and has not seemed to become much worse, and trusts that he will "by-and-by" recover. But this delusion is the grand error which has peopled our cemeteries with consumptive forms, as all forms of catarrh end finally in consumption.

Inhalations we applicable in all diseases of the respiratory organs, out must be prepared for each individual case as they severally require.

WHY MEN HATE WOMEN.

At the first glance this may seem a somewhat startling question to ask, so much so that the spontaneous reply would be: "But men do not hate women." That is precisely where the fallacy is. It lies in the assumption that because poets have said finer things about women than about anything else; because woman is toasted with enthusiatic cheera at millions of banquest during every twelve-month; and because the days of contains are the assumption that because of these things a man who hates women is a monstrosity who ought to be exited from the earth. But meanwhile the fact is that there are plenty of men who hate women without hating woman. The fercity of the husband who comes home (from business) at 3 o'clock in the morning, and finds his wife placidly sltting up for him, may not find expression in audible language, but it has the concentrated force of a cyclone and the condensed fury of a suppressed earthquake. He goes to bed hating that wife whom he has sworn to love, protect, and cherish. The more unconscious he seems of her delinquency the fiercer does his anger burn. He knows that the silent martyrdom she is thus displaying is merely a trick by which a repulse is disguisedly implied. If she wept, or tore her hair, or called him bad names, or slammed down the novel she had been reading, then he might challenge her to mortal combat, and engage in that connubial duel whose expletives are known in all their extent only when it culminates in the publicity of the divorce court. But this engage in that connubial duel whose expletives are known in all their extent only when it culminates in the publicity of the divorce court. But this silent sitting up, this gentle, voiceless aspect of having one's life gradually worn away by the conduct of a debauched consort, is what no husband, however well regulated he may be, can stand—at 8 o'clock in the morning!

What is the reason that all our car conductors hate all women? If you think the case is too strongly stated, ask any ear conductor who can spare time to answer, and he will inform you that it is the women passengers, and not the males, who make his existence a burden and a terror. He never feels safe while a woman is getting into or out of the car. She rushes with such impetuosity that if the car retains ever so little motion as she descends from it she runs the risk of being thrown off her feet, her stupidity never having allowed her to perceive that the front and not the back handle must be used in order that the body may respond to the vehicle's motion. Or, if impetuosity is not her forte, deliberation is, and she makes her exit with Siddonian slowness in spite of the conductor's exhortation: "Step lively, madama." If she gets in makes her exit with Siddonian slowness in spite of the conductor's exhortation:
"Step lively, madame." If she gets in at the Astor House she immediately asks to be let out at Fifty-seventh street. If the car is full she posts herself against the entrance, blockading the passage. Hurried and fluttered, the conductor waits for her fare, and instead of handing him a dime and taking change like a creature endowed with reason, she slowly pokes out five individual cents from the depths of her blind alley of a purse. These are a few of the reasons why conductors hate women; but many more remain. more remain.
Why do business-men hate women?

ouse,

Because, as a rule, women do not know how to behave in places of business. They come at the wrong time, they say the wrong things, and they stay too long. After the business they ostensibly came for is transacted they chatter about an infinity of nothing, wearying the soul of the business-man who is too polite or weak-minded to get rid of them. If a woman goes to a post-office window to ask more than the most ordinary question, or even to do nothing more than to buy a stamp, she either expects that everybody should make way for her in the queue (if there is one) or she ignores the existence of other applicants, plants herself on the wrong side of the window, and secures attention, to the prejudice of first comers. The way in which women behave at the box-office windows of theaters is not kept in the same position long. If he is he dies, so the rule of rotation is kindly worked in his favor and that of his comates in order that they may live and not die. Such unhappy beings, men in spite of this proviso, would be literally pestered to death if they did not continually brace themselves to answer thousands of silly and superfinous questions with sententions civility.

Why do men who go to the theater hat which locks up the view that a man has a right to wear his hat All women who do so are simply nuisances, and the very man who takes to the theater a woman wearings such head-gear confesses in the road and the continually nuisances, and the very man who takes to the theater a woman wearing such head-gear confesses in the read of the wear his hat All women who do so are simply nuisances, and the very man wearing such head-gear confesses in the read in the second to read the such as a right to wear his hat All women who do so are simply nuisances, and the very man wearing such head-gear confesses in the read in the second to read the such as a right to wear his hat All women who do so are simply nuisances, and the very man wearing such head-gear confesses in Because, as a rule, women do not know how to behave in places of business.

wear as the attention was a right to wear his hat. All women who do so are simply nuisances, and the very man who takes to the theater a woman wearing such head-gear confesses in his heart that he is ashamed of her, unless he happens to be in love with her. This article might be prolonged to ten times its present length, and another equally long might be written showing why women hate women, an assenting fact equally uncontrovertible. But we prefer to put the case briefly, acknowledging that here and there a woman may be found so free from the ordinary faults of the sex that she compels admiration, esteem, and affection wherever she moves. When a man finds such a woman, if he be the right pels admiration, esteem, and affection wherever she moves. When a man finds such a woman, if he be the right sort of man, he treasures her in his memory if he meets her but once, and he makes his heart the shrine where she is continually reverenced should he have the good fortune to pass his life in her society.—The Hour.

"Ah, those antumn leaves, Farmer Robinson," sighed the city guest. "What lovely tints of color, and what an addition they are to the charming scenery you must so enjoy." "Yes, miss. The leaves are gettin' a good deal of yaller and red on to 'em, that's a fact. It's about time to gather—" "Then you really find time to gather autumn leaves?" "O, yes, indeed. We rake up a few cartloads every year for beddin' for the hosses." Another esthetic dream masshed.—Hartford Post.

"When I was a young lieutenant in the —th Massachusetts battery," said the professor to a writer in the Boston Record, "I was stationed with the battery on the railroad track between Lake Pontchartrain and New Orleans. It was necessary to guard the line at that point, and there was just enough solid ground on the embankment, which at that point ran through an almost impenetrable swamp infested by alligators, copperheads and bushwhackers, for us to hang on to. My tent was pitched so near the track that there was barely enough room for the trains to pass without tearing the tent to pieces and smashing its occupants. There was a freight train that passed through between 3 and 5 o'clock every morning, shricking as it did so. For five or six times I woke up each morning with the impression that the train was going straight over my body, and was on the point of leaping into the middle of the track or anywhere else, but after awhile I began to grow accustomed to it.

"One morning, however, the train came through with such a series of wild and unaccustomed shrieks that I started up with a sense that something awful was happening, and, just as I was trying to realize what it all was, the top of my tent-pole gave away with a snap, and there came crashing down through the roof of the tent the mangled body of a mule that had been casually thrown my way by the locomotive. The poor animal was not dead but was badly done for, and I ordered the guard to knock him in the head and drag him away. It was done.

"This might have ended the incident but seen we soldier will know it

"This might have ended the incident, but, as any soldier will know, it didn't. That day the corporal of the guard who had killed the mule came to me and said:

"'Lieutenant, that mule has got to be accounted for. What shall we do?'

"'I suppose we can put him down as "lost in an engagement,"' said I, 'But I don't suppose that will work, after all.'

"But must I pay for him?" asked the corporal.
"I told him I would think about it, and did think about it a little, but the next day the corporal came to me and "What mule? said I.

"Oh, that mule that was hurt, said he. 'He's all right now.'

He said he had lost a mule, and somehow he got into camp and succeeded in running down an animal that he swore looked exactly like his. But there was one circumstance that was dead against him. His mule didn't have 'U. S.' branded on his flank."
"Well, what did he do about it?"
"He didn't do anything about it. He couldn't swear the 'U. S.' off the mule's flank, could he?"

Origin of Mrs. Partington.

Origin of Mrs. Partington.

The way in which the first Partington paragraph was written was singular. One evening the news came to the Post newspaper office that flour was selling at very high prices at the Magdalen Islands, in the Gulf of St. Lawrence. Said George Baily, one of Shillaber's fellow-compositors: "I don't care a what the price is in the Magdalen Islands, I always have to give just so much for half a dollar's worth." The idea struck Shillaber as odd, and he immediately set up the lines: "Mrs. Partington says she always noticed that, whether flour was dear or cheap, she had invariably to pay the same money for half a dollar's worth." The paragraph was generally copied by other newspapers the next day, and a second paragraph published the following day was equally well received. Encouraged by these successes and the Colonel's commendation, Mr. Shillaber continued to write such quaint paragraphs and other matter as have since made him famous—Boston Globe.

While steaming down the St. Croix river with Capt. Wooster on the swift tag William Hinds the captain told me two yarns that are well worth repeating, says a writer in the Lewiston (Me.) Journal. We were passing the town of Perry. A young lady of 16 years, another captain's daughter, took the wheel and managed it like an ancient mariner, and the captain was at liberty to suck his cigar and tell his stories.

"A minister who used to live here in the town of Perry," said he, "was once visited by another minister on a Sunday; so he killed two ducks and ordered his hired girl to dress and cook them for dinner. The girl did as she was told, but while the ducks were roasting her beau came and made her a call. Being hungry, and tempted by the smell of the sizzling fowl, he seized one of the ducks and ate it.

"The girl was driven to her wits' ducks and ate it.

'The girl was driven to her wits' ends by this unlucky incident. She was rather glad her beau had such a nice-dinner, but despaired at finding an excuse to tell the minister—let's call him Mr. Brown—to account for the missing duck. When Minister Brown came home to dinner with Visiting Minister Jones the girl had hit upon a scheme. She asked her employer to go out to the grindstone which stood in the yard and sharpen the carving-knife. He went at work on the knife at once, being hungry for those ducks. The girl stole up-stairs and asked the visiting minister to look out of the window.

and asked the visiting minister to look out of the window.

"See there?" said she. 'I came up to give you warning. You little know the danger you're in. The man I work for is crazy, and he is sharpening that knife to cut your throat?

"The circl sweezeded in thereachly."

"The girl succeeded in thoroughly alarming the visitor, and he hastily put on his hat and ran as fast as his legs could take him.
"When he had run several rods the girl called her master and asked him what kind of a man he had brought what kind of a man he had brought home to dinner. The minister inquired why she asked, when, pointing to the flying brother, the girl exclaimed: "There he goes, running away with one of your ducks?"

The captain's other story concerned the notorious Elder Adams, who conducted the bewildered Maine colonists to Palestine and abandoned them in poverty there. When Elder Adams was preaching his crusade he had to contend against many scoffers and doubters. One of them was a Jonesport man named Tom Crowley.

"At one of Elder Adam's meetings in Jonesport," quoth the captain, "Tom Crowley arose and said he had dreamed a dream which he would like to tell. The elder told him to go ahead, and Tom proceeded. He said he dreamed the devil had got possession of him and would not let him go unless he (Tom) would name three things he could not do. So he first asked the devil to part the Atlantic ocean so an army could the Atlantic ocean so an army could march across, as the Israelites did, and the devil easily did it. Then Tom asked him to tell him where a wreck lay in which Tom one was card away and in which Tom once was cast away, an the devil told him to a dot. 'As a last resort, said Tom, I dramed I asked the devil to produce a bigger liar than Elder Adams, but the fevil acknowl-edged he could not do it and gave me

"Tom's dream produced a great sensation in the meeting—head her for that old barn!" exclaimed the captain, suddenly turning his attention from me to the girl at the wheel.

If the rest of Elder Adam's hearers had taken Tom's measure of that monu-mental fraud they would have saved themselves a vast deal of suffering.

Langtry's First Appearance.

Apropos of Mrs. Langtry's exceeding beauty as Pauline, in the "Lady of Lyons," Mrs. Paran Stevens tells in a very graphic fashion of the first time she ever saw the lady on the day of her first public appearance in London society. It was at a great tea given by the Coldstream guards at the tower, to which some two thousand people were invited. There had been rumors of a famous new beauty from Jersey, and of course her portrait had been seen in the Royal academy exhibit, but with the exception of a favored few who had met her at small affairs she had not been revealed to the London world. "She came in when the thing was about half over," said Mrs. Stevens, "and people began to whisper about that the new beauty had appeared, and to stand or beauty had appeared, and to stand on tiptoe and crane their necks to catch a glimpse of her. She was a perfect vision of loveliness. Dressed in a simple little black frock, cut square at the neck and showing her throat, that was white as milk, and her face framed by a wide, black Gainsborough hat, she made a complete conquest of the fashionable world at first glance. Everything went down before her, and by the next morning she was the most-talked-of woman in England. I confess I was quite as enthusiastic as the rest of the world, for I adore pretty women, and I thought enthusiastic as the rest of the world, for I adore pretty women, and I thought her the prettiest I had ever seen. She seemed quite perfect, from her slender feet to the two rows of pearls she showed every time she smiled. She was excited and a little sby, and a rosy glow came and went in her cheeks, which only made her more irresistible. They tell me she has grown rounded now, but then she was very slim and girlish, and looked much too young to be married. What a triumph that season was to her, to be sure! Probably no other woman has ever been so petted and idolized by the fashionable set in London.

"Her father was the handsomest man in England, so she came by her beauty through direct inheritance. He wa dean of Jersey, as you know, and I saw the father and daughter come into dinner together one night, he in his clerical garb and she in full evening dress, and I thought then, and think still, that I had never seen more perfect types of masculine and feminine beauty. I have not seen her since she went on the stage; at one time I knew her quite well."

A Norwegian Bride and Groom.

The bride was about 23. I should say, with a ruddy complexion, good features, and large blue eyes. She had upon her head the bridal crown, without which few peasant women are married in Norway. I tried one on my own head on another occasion, and found it heavy. There is a brass rim to fit the head, and the open silver-work above it is often gilt in place with patches of gold, and embellished with garnets. Such crowns are kept as heirlooms; and it is no uncommon thing for the women of the same household to be married in a crown that has done similar duty in the family for one or two hundred years. The skirt was of black material, the bodice was snowy white, with a corset of red and green, and an apron of white, with bands of embroidery hanging in front of it. Around the neck and the waist were squarely-made, dusky silver with bands of embroidery hanging in front of it. Around the neck and the waist were squarely-made, dusky silver bands, looking like an eccentric collection of old buckles.

The bridegroom wore a "top hat," which seemed to have been kept in his family much after the fashion of his intended's bridal crown. He has a red waistcoat very short in the waist, with brass buttons on it, and a singular kind of coat, very loose, with frontal ornament. There was just a suspicion of red piping down the side of the trousers. He was a muscular, sun-burnt hardy-looking man of about 30, though probably younged than he seemed to be. The white bodices and colored skirts, the silver jewelry, of the girls in the procession, and the snowy headgear of the married women with crimped lappets hanging down the back, and V-shaped, made a brave show.

The second couple looked much older. The brides had their wedding rings silready on their fingers, and each carried several handkerchiefs folded up, of various colors. These handkerchiefs are ried several handkerchiefs folded up, of various colors. These handkerchiefs are usually presents given at the betrothal. The ceremony was short. The service and communion were over before the bridal processions reached the church; and as they entered the two couples advanced to the altar, knelt dawn, and then placed themselves with down, and then placed themselves, with their friends, about the altar-rails. The pastor, in a black gown, with an Eliza-bethan ruff round his neck, addressed a few words to the groups, and then questioned bridegrooms and brides in turn. Each couple then knelt down, with their hands joined together, and the pastor pronounced them man and wife. A benediction concluded the service.— Cassell's Family Magazine for Novem

A Lively Corpse.

In a neighboring town death entered an estimable household at midnight, and an undertaker from this city was summoned by telegraph, writes a Bridge-port correspondent of the New York Sun. On arriving at the house the un-dertaker sent his lady assistant to an upper chamber to prepare the corpse. Taking her box of bandages, sponges, etc. the assistant went, as she thought, to the room indicated, but instead she to the room indicated, but instead she entered the room of a young lady, a member of the bereaved family, who had fallen sound asleep from exhaustion caused by her constant attendance at the sick bed. The attendant had an old-fashioned tallow dip, which she sat on the stand and depositing her box on the stand, and depositing her box on the bed by the side of the sleeping beauty, she began operations. Taking a soft sponge, she carefully washed the a soft sponge, she carefully washed the face, observing, what was not unusual, that the flesh was still warm. ### He Rose to the Occasion.

The greatest argument against kings is that when the king hasn't got his crown and his insignia you can't tell him from anybody else, and if you put a millionaire behind a bar, even by accident, people will come in and demand cocktails of him, and probably tell him to hurry up, as thirsty people who want to get along to the next saloon usually do. He thought he was a lazy waiter. "Give me that plate, please."

"Give me that plate, please."

The austere figure turned and gazed upon him silently.

"Give me that plate, waiter."

There was no sign. It began to dawn upon the guest that he was mistaken and finally he recognized in the figure a well known millionaire, who was apparently best on the save errand.
